

Marius Park

Concept

We feel sorry for Marius, whose life seemed so insignificant... who children were looking at when his life ended... And we would like to explain them the importance of being alive.

Life is fragile. Life is precious. Life is beautiful. Nothing exists if we cannot appreciate life.

Marius died, but his memory will remain at Marius park. His trace will rest printed over the ground, next to the sea, in the middle of the nature.

His skin pattern will give us the guideline to design our land art project: a park where his brown patches will become green empty spaces and his white lines will become ways for pedestrians, always providing a beautiful figure with a comfortable usage, mixing nature and advanced technology... everything we wish to have an enjoyable life.

Life is nature, and nature is life. The park will remind us Marius and the importance and fragility of life, as fragile as nature, and how we should cherish and respect them, because they, all together, give sense to our world.

Our project will pay tribute to nature.
