

Energy is generated by pistons attached to the rotating wings. The wings are attached to a pivot and therefore are able to rotate. As they rotate they actuate hydraulic piston pumps that start an alternating linear movement. This movement is then transformed into electricity by a generator.

