

Driven by the wind, towards a green horizon

Copenhagen and Refshaleøen share a rich history of travel, going into the unknown in order to explore new horizons.

The choice of the LAGI organisation for this location is therefore very appropriate. We are, after all, on the eve of a new horizon once again, this time for a quest for clean energy.

In our design, the past of this location and the need for clean energy come together. Our contribution consists of a silhouette of a ship which is formed by wind-turbines, a ship at the beginning of a new journey.

Hereby we refer to the rich history of Refshaleøen and at the same time the search for renewable and clean energy. Towards a green horizon.
