

sails

an homage to seafaring

Sun, wind and sea. These are the constant companions of the seafarer. Whether it was centuries ago or right now at this moment the sailor always knows he will encounter them on his voyage; he counts on them. And in Copenhagen, so should we.

It was the importance of seafaring for Denmark and Copenhagen throughout history that inspired the shared remembrance of sails playing on the wind. Understanding the full significance of the vision; the transformation of wind into energy by man for his usage without harming his environment. A basic idea, too often forgotten.
